

Holding a "comprehensive plan for contemplating the Qur'an" online during Ramadan for students across the country

The Deputy Minister of Culture and Social Affairs of the Ministry of Science, in cooperation with the Quran and Atrat Student School of the University of Tehran and the General Directorate of Culture and Social Affairs of the University of Tehran, is holding a "Comprehensive Plan for Thinking in the Quran" program during the holy month of Ramadan.

All classes are held online and free, the details of which are as follows

Concluding the Qur'an with the general approach of contemplation in the Qur'an

In this end, the Qur'an introduces each of the chapters of the Qur'an with the following axes:

Explaining the purpose of the surah from the interpretation of Al-Mizan

Explain the main topics of the surah

Introducing the key words of Surah

Introducing the key verses of Surah

Explain the purity of Surah

Concluding the Quran with the focus on the interpretation of the balance and contemplation (especially for sisters)

In this end of the Quran, all the chapters of the Quran with the following axes are introduced:

Explaining the most important points of Al-Mizan interpretation below the verses

Explain the main topics of the surah

Express the keywords of the verses

Concluding the surahs of the Qur'anic section with the approach of understanding the Qur'an in primary school

At the end of each of the surahs of the 30th part of the Holy Quran, it is stated with this approach how these surahs can be presented to the audience of the elementary school (children 6 to 12 years old).

In introducing each of the suras, while stating the main purpose of the surah, how to express that purpose is presented in proportion to each of the six educational bases.

Workshops on specialized subjects of education and cultivation with a Quranic approach

In these workshops, the most important topics in the field of education and cultivation are presented with a Quranic approach.
